Quality Care in a Gracious Setting

ArchCare at Mary Manning Walsh Home has been the community of choice for families seeking intensive short-term rehabilitation and exceptional long-term care on Manhattan’s Upper East Side for more than six decades. Guided by the Carmelite Sisters for the Aged and Infirm, a religious order long recognized for its pacesetting approach to eldercare, Mary Manning Walsh Home cares for people of all faiths in an atmosphere of grace and elegance rarely found in traditional nursing facilities.

Our modern and renovated facility offers:

- Short-term rehabilitation and sub-acute medical care that speeds recovery and eases the transition from hospital to home following a major illness or surgery

Mary Manning Walsh Home’s welcoming public spaces, including a seventh-floor outdoor terrace, provide ample opportunities for residents to socialize, relax or entertain guests. And with the help of an active Family and Resident Circle and many volunteers, residents are assured of a wealth of programs and activities to fill their days and enrich their lives.

Care of the Body and Spirit

At ArchCare, caring for residents’ physical health needs is only part of what we do. To us, supporting their emotional and spiritual health is equally important. Clergy and social work professionals are available seven days a week to advise, counsel and console. Visits by personal spiritual advisors are always welcomed, and bedside visits by local priests, ministers, rabbis and other clergy are easily arranged.

Formal Catholic Mass and services meet the religious needs of all of our guests. We offer regular services for the Jewish Sabbath, along with High Holy Day services and celebrations of other holidays and festivals complete with traditional Jewish foods and rituals.
